Saving your financial information

Your information is saved locally in your browser, not in an online customer account. Use the same browser and device to return to your saved information. Clearing website data or using private browsing may cause your information to be lost.

Regularly export a backup using the available export tools. Keep the backup in a secure location and follow the guide in Start Here when you need to restore your data. Review sensitive information before sharing it with any external AI platform.

Your individual-use license

Your purchase grants you a limited, nonexclusive, nontransferable license for individual use, including within your own business. You may use the workspace and personalize the included resources for your own internal business needs.

You may not share the access link, redistribute, reproduce for commercial distribution, resell, sublicense or rebrand the product or its proprietary resources. Commercial distribution, white-label use and multi-user access require a separate paid license.

The Profit Architecture™ is a self-guided educational resource, not individualized accounting, tax, legal or financial advice. Review your results and seek professional guidance when needed.
